FIGURES IN BERGDOLL KIDNAPPING CASE

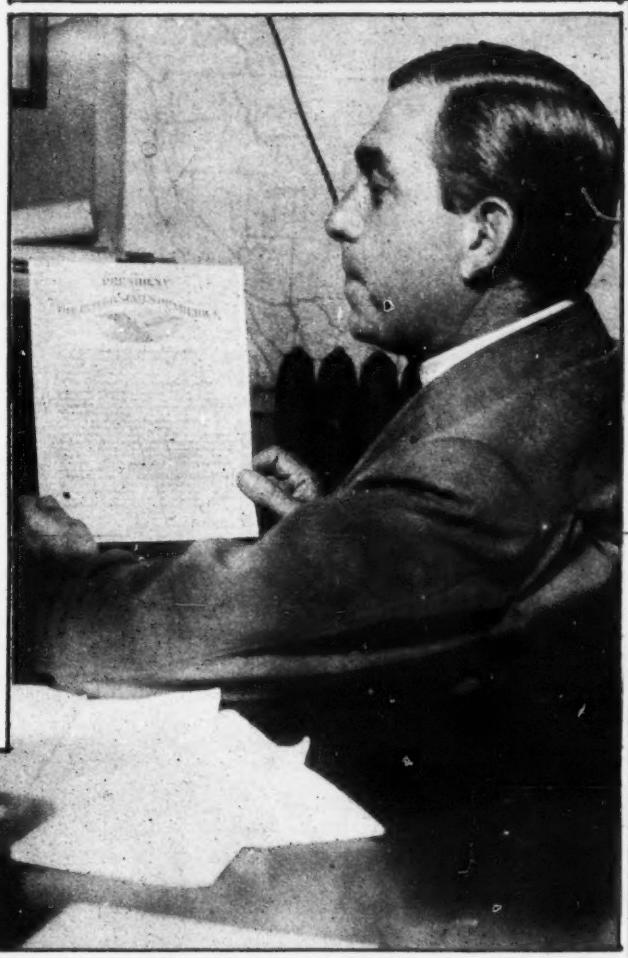

Lieutenant Hooven Griffis, under arrest in Germany, charged with attempting to kidnap Grover Cleveland Bergdoll, the notorious draft dodger and fugitive from justice. He was captured during the recent attempt of several men to get possession of Bergdoll, presumably with the view of having him shipped to this country. It is said that the Secretary of State has planned to take up the matter of Griffis's release and Bergdoll's extradition.

LAST APPOINTMENT MADE BY HARDING

John Golden, New York theatrical manager, reading his commission as Major in the Officers' Reserve Corps, the last appointment made by President Harding before he left on the trip which ended in his death. The commission was given in recognition of "exceptional patriotic services during the war."

BOY SCOUTS PLANT TREE TO HONOR LATE PRESIDENT

A tree which will be known as the Harding Memorial Tree and kept alive by local Boy Scouts was planted recently in honor of the dead President at the end of Lincoln Highway. A brief address made by Charles C. Moore, prominent in the Boy Scouts' organization, was followed by the tree-planting ceremony.

JOHNNY WILSON IN TRAINING

After two years of inactivity, due to the action of the New York State Boxing Commission, Johnny Wilson has at last made a match with Harry Greb, and the contest for the middleweight championship will be held on the Polo Grounds, New York, on Aug. 31. Wilson is reported to be in the pink of condition.

Newcomers Who in Their First Year in the Major Leagues

GIANT CAPTAIN SCORING RUN

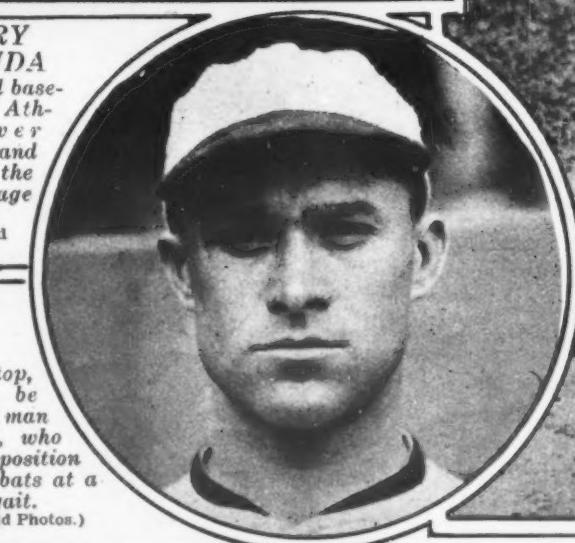

Dave Bancroft crossing the plate for the first run of the game on Meusel's hit in the first inning of hotly fought contest between the Giants and the Cincinnati Reds at the Polo Grounds. The run did not avail, however, for the Reds won on a homer in the eleventh inning by a score of 5 to 4. And by one of fate's little ironies the circuit clout was poled out by George Burns, former Giant outfielder.

"WID" MATHEWS
One of Connie Mack's "finds," who plays centre field for the Athletics, covers his position in great shape and is full of speed and daring on the bases. He is slamming the horsehide with great regularity and hovers closely about the .300 mark, his present average being .297.

HOLLIS THURSTON
White Sox pitcher, who has a corking curve ball and a good change of pace calculated to deceive the cunningest batsman. With a weak team he has won five and lost three games.

Are Making the Old-Timers Look to Their Laurels

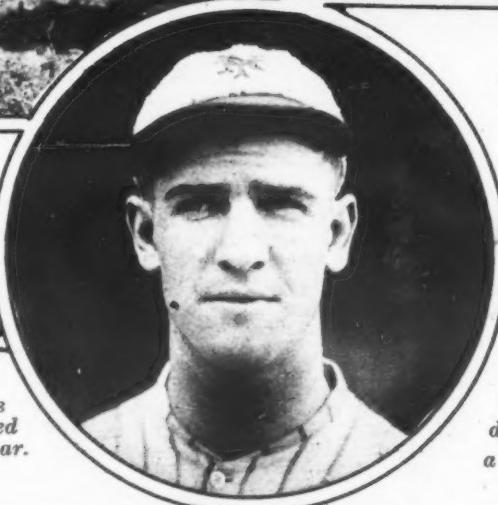

GLENN MYATT

First string catcher for the Clevelands, who cost Connie Mack $35,000 and is proving that he is worth it. His stickwork has earned him an average of .310.

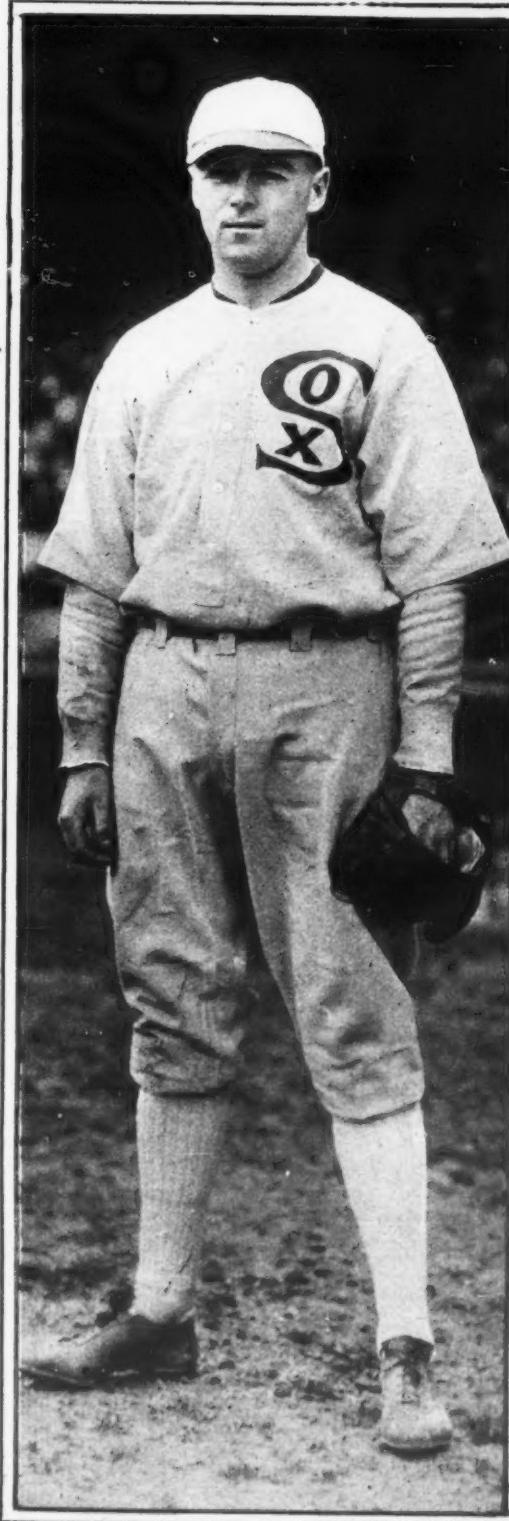

TRAVIS JACKSON

Sensational young infielder of the Giants whose fielding and batting have marked him out as one of the finds of the year. Average .272.
(International.)

JACK BENTLEY

Giant pitcher secured by McGraw from the Baltimores for $65,000. He has done excellent work in the box, having won ten and lost seven games.

WILLIE KAMM

Third baseman of the Chicago White Sox, who cost $100,000 and is justifying the price by his guardianship of the "difficult corner" in a manner which recalls the days of Jimmy Collins.

Recruits Who Are Winning Their Spurs in Fast Company

OSCAR BLUEGE

Third baseman of the Senators, who is holding down his position in a style that has caused the veterans of his own and other teams to sit up and take notice. He takes the ball with equal ease on either side of the bag and hurls it over to first like a bullet. He covers a large amount of territory and is death on bunts. His clever fielding and timely hitting has been of immense value to his team and has made him a fixture in his position. He is handy also with the stick and is especially good on timely hits. His batting average is .271.

(Wide World Photos.)

GRANTHAM

Second baseman of the Chicago Cubs, who is handling his position at the key-stone bag in a way that reminds the fans of Johnny Evers at his best. As a pivot of double plays he has done remarkable work. In his first year in the majors he has played with the steadiness and skill of a veteran. He is fleet of foot and bids fair to contest the leadership with the league in stolen bases with Cary of the Pittsburghs. He has pilfered thirty-four bases thus far this season. Batting average .283.

"GOOSE" GOSLIN

Crack outfielder of the Washingtons, a good judge of fly balls and quick as a flash in returning the ball to the plate. His hitting is timely and he is batting at a .288 clip.

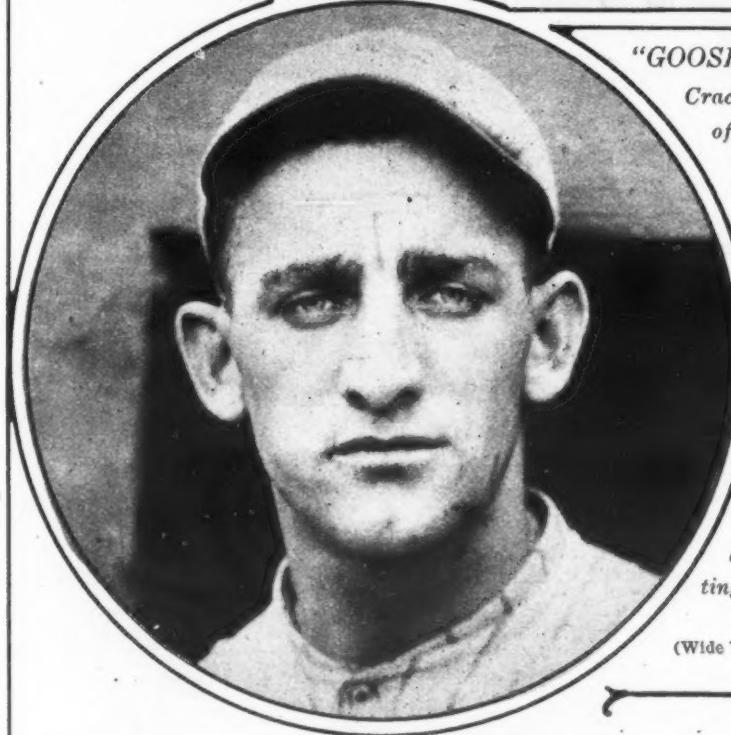

(Wide World Photos.)

JOE GENEWICH

Recruit pitcher for the Boston Braves who seems destined to enjoy a long stay in the majors. Thus far this season with weak batting behind him he has won eight and lost ten games.

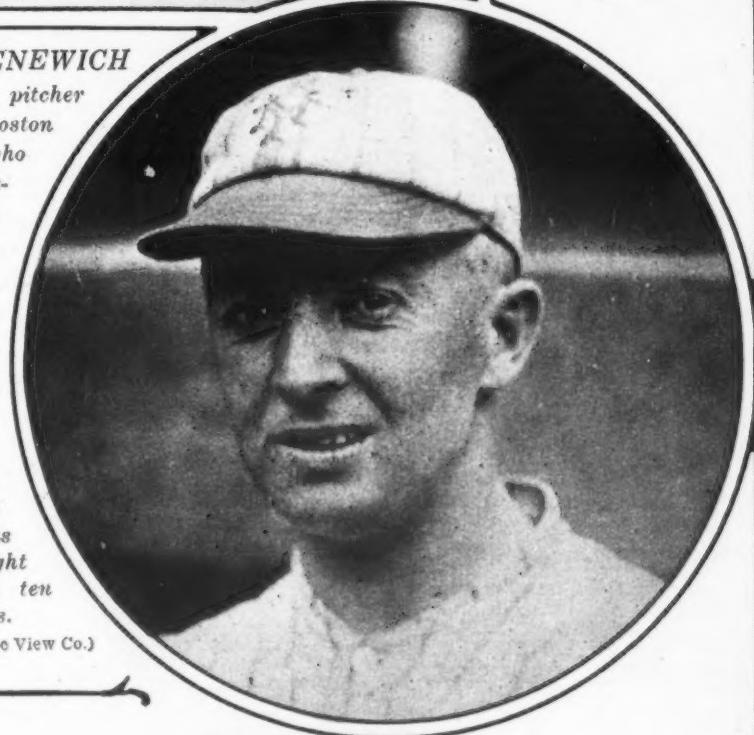

(Keystone View Co.)

MIKE CVENGROS

Rookie twirler of the White Sox who was with the Giants in the Spring but was let out as not being quite ready for fast company. That this was a mistake on the part of the usually astute McGraw is shown by the work that he has been doing for the Chicago White Sox. He has won ten games and lost ten this season, which, with a sixth-place team behind him, is excellent work.

(Keystone View Co.)

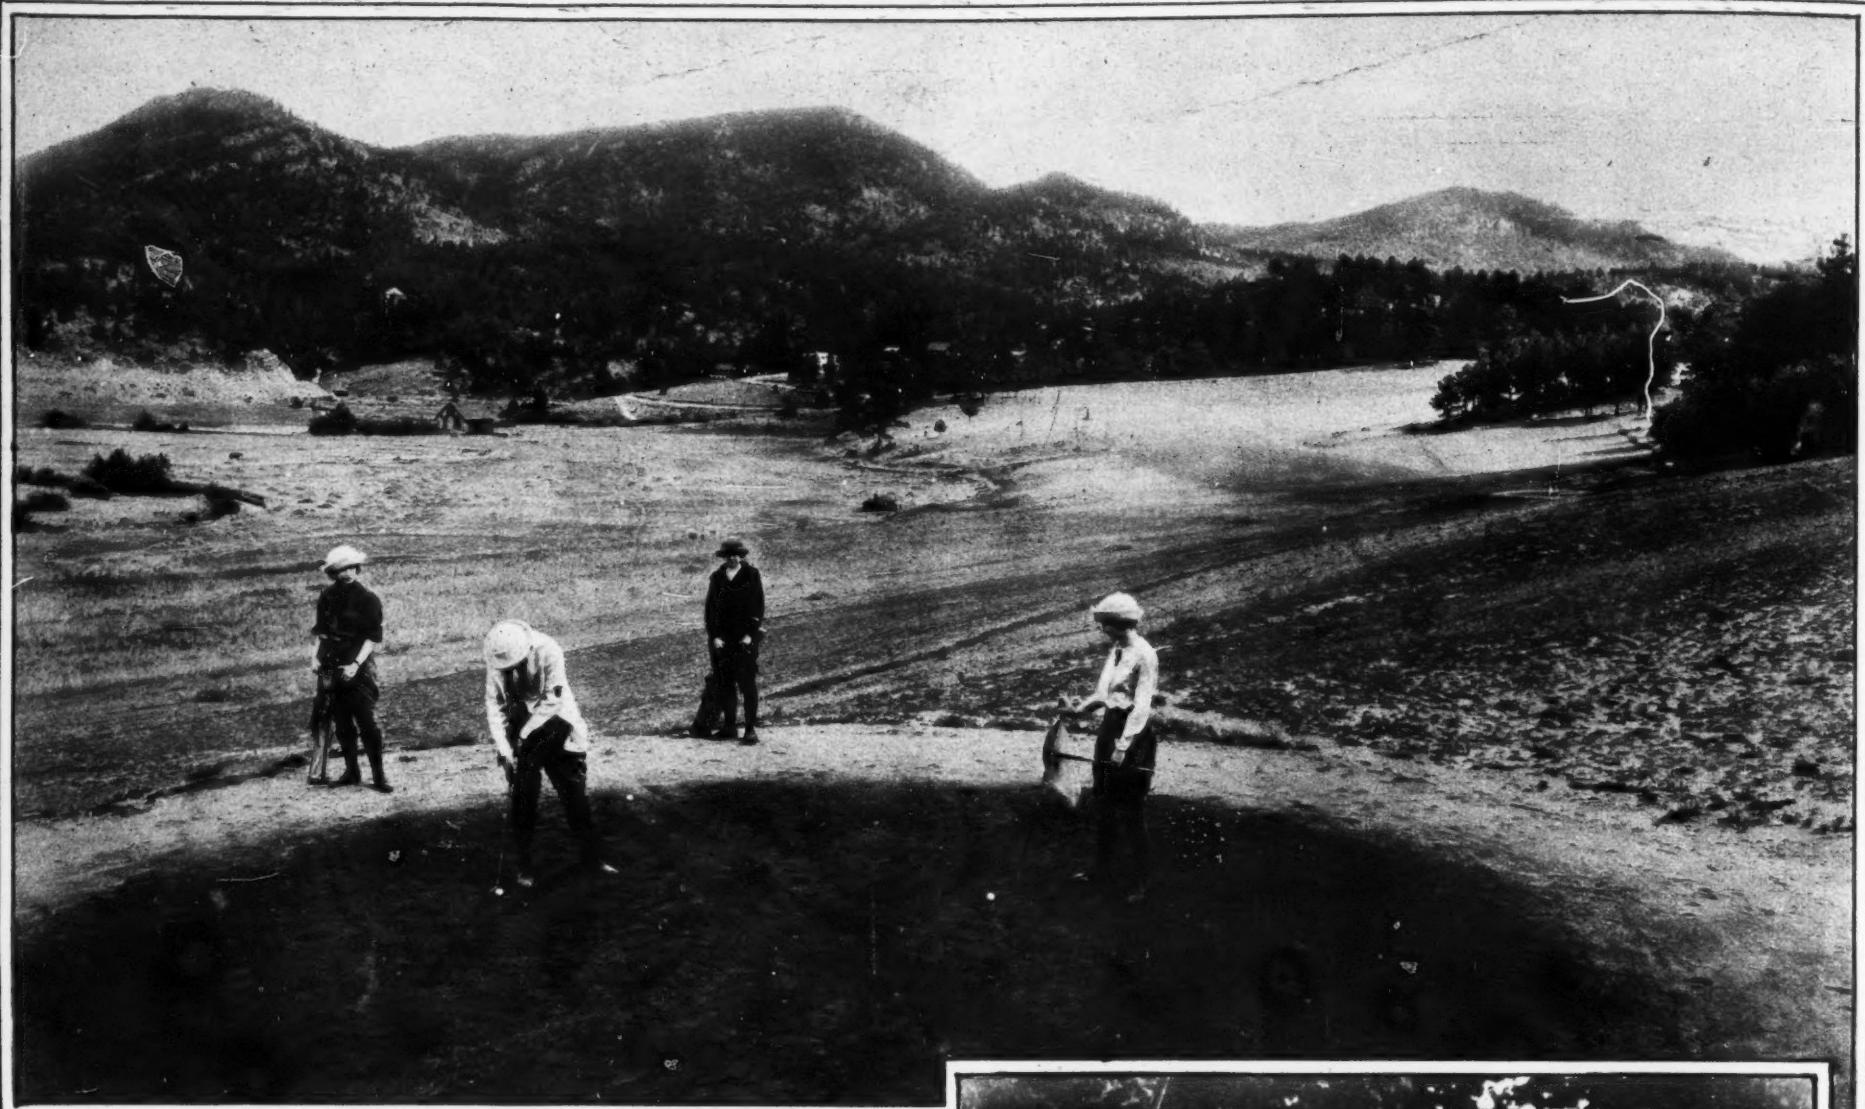

DENNIS GEARIN

Southpaw pitcher recently acquired by the New York Giants. He is of small stature but big in baseball ability. He has a fine arm and has an excellent assortment of slants and curves. He bears all the marks of a "comer," and even in such fast company as the Giant team finds himself at home.

"EYES OF THE NIGHT" FOR AVIATORS

One of the powerful beacon lights and wind indicators with a visibility of thirty miles which are being erected on emergency landing fields at intervals along the 800-mile stretch to be flown by night air mail bird men when the transcontinental air service begins. These lights are of incalculable value during nights of exceptional darkness, fog or storm, and upon them depend not only the swiftness and efficiency of the air mail service, but frequently the very lives of the daring aviators who speed across the continent from coast to coast.

NINTH AMERICAN CHESS CONTEST

Group of competitors in the Chess Masters' Tournament at the Alameda Hotel, Lake Hopatcong, N. J. At the table on left is D. Janowski, French champion, while directly opposite him is Frank J. Marshall, chess champion of the United States. Seated next to Marshall is Edward Lasker of Chicago. Standing with his hand on Janowski's chair is A. E. Santasiere, and behind him at the extreme left is A. Kupchik of New York. The tall figure standing behind Janowski is R. T. Black of Syracuse; on his right is O. Tenner and directly next to him is A. B. Hodges, the veteran American player. At the time of writing Marshall was in the lead with a score of nine games won and two lost, while Janowski was close on his heels with eight and a half won and two and a half lost. The tournament has been productive of play of a very high order.

Dickens
and His

DICKENS pageant, which was held recently in memory of the great novelist on the steps of the Town Hall in Portsmouth, England. The immortal author is seen standing in the centre forefront, while about him are grouped characters taken from his books. There are a host of them, for few writers were more prolific. Their names are household words wherever the English language is spoken. Many are beautiful, others pathetic, ludicrous or wicked. There is scarcely a quality of human nature that is not embodied in some of his characters. It is an interesting task to study these numerous faces and place them in the story to which they belong. Little Nell, Mr. Pickwick, Mark Tapley, Lady Dedlock, Poor Jo, Agnes Wickfield, Sam Weller, Jonas Chuzzlewit, Paul Dombey—these and scores of others can be identified by lovers of the greatest fiction that England has produced. (International.)

"The Breaking Point" : Mary Roberts Rinehart's New Play Based on Amnesia

(I.) Scene in first act of the "Breaking Point," now playing at the Klaw Theatre, New York City, in which the old physician, David Livingstone (John T. Doyle), confronts Beverly Carlisle (Gail Kane), an actress who has come to his office to ascertain if his protégé, young Dr. Richard Livingstone, is in reality Jud Clark, her lover of ten years before. She has seen and thought she recognized him at her performance on the previous night. The old doctor, greatly agitated, refuses information.

(II.) As the disappointed actress is leaving she suddenly comes face to face with young Dick Livingstone (McKay Morris). The latter is really Jud Clark, who ten years before in a drunken quarrel at a ranch in Wyoming had presumably killed the husband of the actress, who was jealous of him. Clark had escaped and was supposed to be dead, but had been rescued by the old doctor and nursed back to life. He has forgotten utterly the past and does not recognize the actress.

(III.) Dick, who under the old physician's tutelage has become a skillful physician in a suburb of New York City, has fallen desperately in love with Elizabeth Miller (Regina Wallace) and is here seen exercising some of the privileges of an accepted lover. An amusing byplay, for the benefit of the patients who may be in the outer office and within earshot, is his pretense to prescribe for her as a patient in a loud and professional tone while surreptitiously punctuating his remarks with kisses. She is ecstatically happy as Dick presses a farewell kiss upon her lips and arranges to see her father and ask permission for their marriage.

(IV.) The newspaper reporter at right, Bassett (Robert Barrat), had got on the scent of the mystery and had called on Dick and accused him of being the Jud Clark who was wanted in Wyoming for murder. Dick had ordered him out, but had then gone to the old physician and wrested from him enough of the story to make him anxious to go to Wyoming and probe the mystery to the bottom. Bassett, however, had preceded him and before Dick's arrival at the ranch is seen convincing the incredulous Sheriff Wilkins (John F. Morrissey) that Clark was really alive and was identical with Dick Livingstone. The Sheriff is at once on the alert and prepares to capture Dick on his arrival.

(V.) Joe, at left (Maurice Darcy), the foreman of the Clark ranch, together with Bill Smith (Stephen Maley) are greatly perturbed at the threatened capture of Dick (or Jud) on his arrival, and are planning what they can do to save him from the Sheriff's hands. Bill was a former warm friend of Jud, knows all about the story, had helped the old doctor to further Jud's escape and later had been an inmate of the doctor's household near New York. Dick arrives, is confronted by Bassett and knocks the latter down. The struggle, so similar to the one that had a fatal ending ten years before, brings back his memory of his life as Jud Clark. The Sheriff enters, Jud leaps through the window, takes the Sheriff's horse and escapes.

(Below.) (VI.) Beverly Carlisle, the actress, in the doctor's home urging Elizabeth to give Dick up forever, telling her that unless she does her lover is sure to be imprisoned or possibly executed. Dick, who now remembers both existences, returns and is trapped and manacled by the Sheriff, who has come East in pursuit. Beverly seeks to regain his love, but the old infatuation is past forever. She flings herself out of the room, letting fall a hint that she herself had done the slaying. Dick is exonerated and he and Elizabeth are reunited in a scene of great tenderness and beauty.

Scientific Inventions and Mechanical Devices

PHOTOGRAPHING AN ATOM

The camera's latest victory is the photographing of an atom, which is a thousand times too small to be seen under the microscope. There are 2,000,000 atoms to the inch, yet science has now photographed two of them in collision and gathered material for further study from the bright, cometlike tracks they leave on the camera's plate. By a special apparatus, timed to a motion-picture camera, 3,000 distinct photos may be taken in an hour.

AIRPLANE OF THE FUTURE

In a recent plane convention a startling innovation was made in the exhibition of this model of twin-hull flying boat of the junker type. This cantilever-winged monoplane is capable of carrying sixty passengers and can ride in the water as well as the air. It will have four 500-horsepower propeller motors, which together make a force of 2,000 horsepower, and give a speed of 100 miles an hour. There seems to be no insuperable mechanical difficulties in the realization of this plane.

WORLD'S FIRST MOVING-PICTURE MACHINE

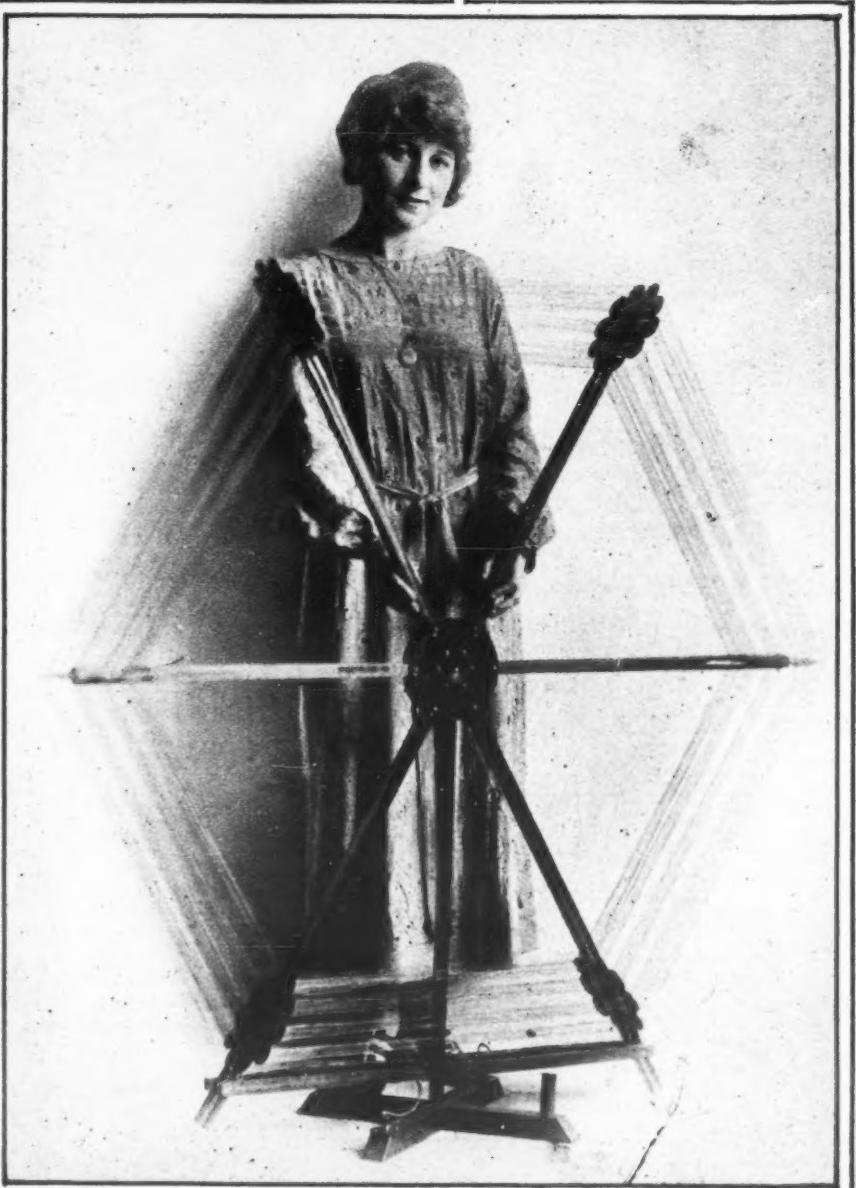

This device, now in the Kingston (England) Museum, is called the zoopraxiscope, and was invented by Edward Muybridge in 1884, owing to a wager between two millionaires who were unable to agree as to whether at any one moment the legs of a horse trotting were all off the ground. To solve the problem Mr. Muybridge took a large number of instantaneous photos, stuck them on a disk and put them through this machine with very satisfactory results.

OF INTEREST TO RADIO FANS

This loop or coil antenna, invented by Dr. J. Harris Rogers of Hyattsville, Md., may be used with a radio receiving set in the home or office or may be buried in a well and yet receive wireless messages. With six stages of amplification, this coil, containing 120 turns of wire, should be able to receive signals from most all the high-powered stations in this country and in Europe.

How Bobby Jones Hits the Ball

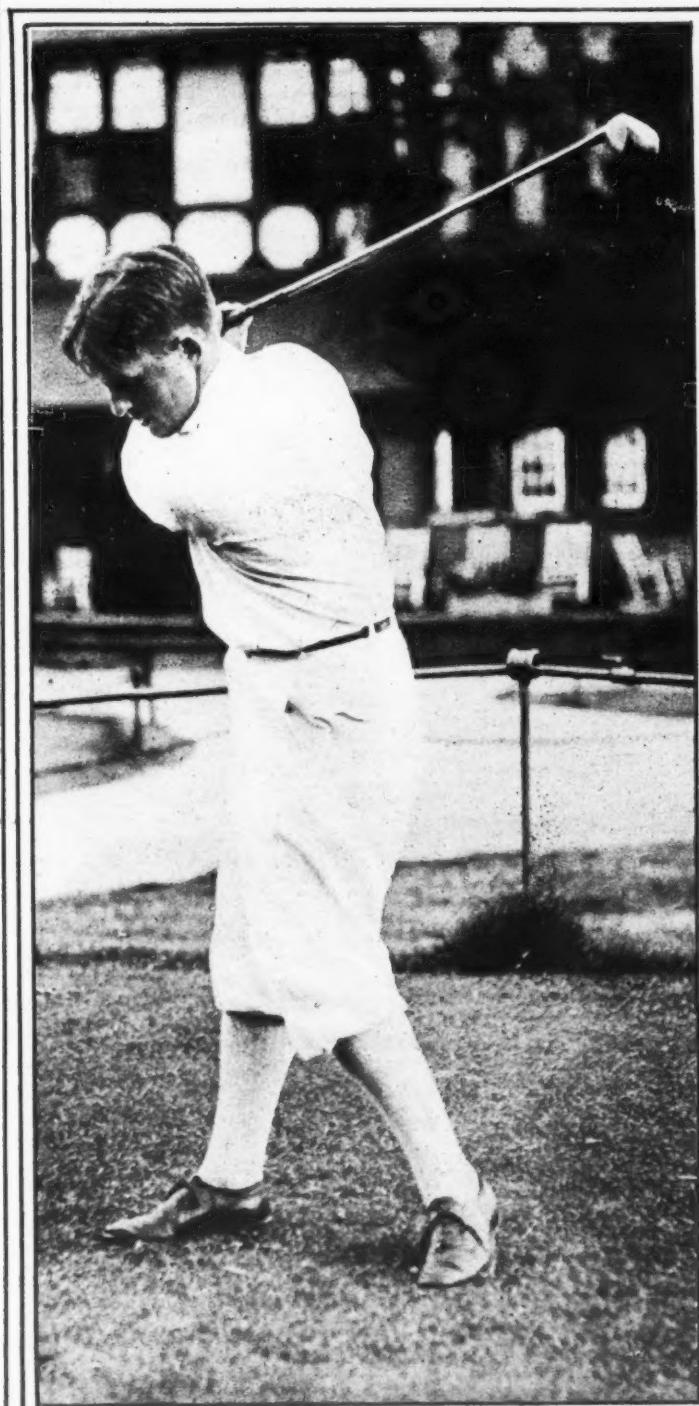

(1) How Bobby Jones, the open golf champion, holds his driver as he gets set for driving the ball. Successive phases of his stroke follow.

(2) Measuring the ball for the drive. Long practice has given him the precision of a billiardist with his cue.

(3) Lifting his club to make the drive that will send the ball whizzing through the air at just the right height to carry it to the vicinity of the next hole.

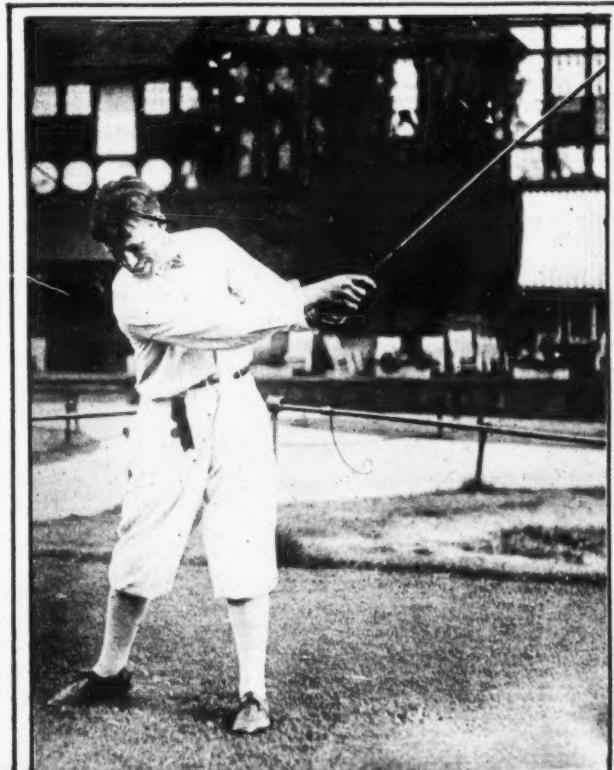

(4) Getting ready to swing his club for long drive. His eye never leaves the ball, and both eyes and muscles work in perfect co-ordination. Since the time the new champion started on his career, when he was only a boy of fourteen, he has been noted for the accuracy and driving power of his stroke.

(5) The stroke is made. With a resounding crack the club has met the ball and the latter has started on the long journey for the next green.

(7) Finish of the drive, whose momentum has carried the club around his shoulder to the back, while Bobby looks to see how near the ball has gone to its destination.

(6) The force of the swing carries the club well up over his head, though the champion has not yet lifted his eyes to follow the course of the ball.

WAR MEMORIAL BY YOUNG AMERICAN
Statue of Pallas Athena, the Greek Goddess of War, modeled by Roy Aukem Sheldon of St. Louis, Mo., and intended as a war memorial for Arkansas. The figure itself without the base is eight feet high and will be represented as throwing a sixteen-foot lance and carrying a round shield five feet in diameter. It will be erected in Paragould, Ark., on top of a cliff.

FIRST SUBMERSIBLE PRECURSOR OF THE MODERN SUBMARINE
This massive undersea device was built in 1864 by Messrs. Fushnell-Rice and Halstead of New Jersey and is now one of the relics on exhibition at the Brooklyn Navy Yard. It is 28 feet long and 9 feet high, and carried a crew of ten men. It had a speed of four knots an hour by hand propulsion. The cost was $60,000.

DEAD TREE FAMOUS IN AMERICAN HISTORY

The Washington Elm in Cambridge, Mass., under which George Washington took command of the Revolutionary Army, despite all the care that has been taken of it, is now dead. A drive has been started for funds to erect a monument in its place. A shoot from the old tree cut off several years ago and transplanted may be planted at a spot near the parent elm. For You— Pleasant Days of Cool Comfort

COOL, comfortable feet permit restful relaxation on hot Summer days. They leave your mind free to enjoy delightful outings and add to the recreative qualities of your vacation.

Cantilever Shoes give the feet free play and wonderful comfort. Swollen, uncomfortable feet, caused by retarded circulation, are liberated in Cantilever Shoes. The arch of the Cantilever Shoe, flexible like the arch of your foot, curves up when the shoe is laced to follow the exact contour of the under foot. This gives gentle, helpful support to your arch without restraining its muscular action. Your foot muscles are allowed to strengthen, through exercise, and weak arches are corrected and prevented. Circulation is free.

The natural lines and moderate heels of the Cantilever Shoe permit your foot to be comfortable, as Nature intended. Your toes have room to straighten out. There is no binding anywhere and your foot feels at home and at ease.

Cantilever Shoes are made of fine soft materials that are easy on the foot and pleasing to the eye. These shoes are trimly proportioned and in keeping with this season's styles.

Women have discovered that restful Cantilevers give them the knack of appearing cool and attractive during the warm weather. They have learned to make Summer a season for ease and comfort and to accomplish more without fatigue. In nearly every city in the United States there is a Cantilever Store where you will be carefully fitted by men who understand the requirements of your feet.

Except in New York City and Chicago there is only one Cantilever Store in each city. At the left is a partial list of the stores that have been selected to sell Cantilever Shoes. If none of these is convenient, write the manufacturers, Morse & Burt Company, 11 Carlton Ave., Brooklyn, N. Y., for the address of the nearest dealer and a new booklet on feet and shoes.

Endorsed by Women's Colleges, Women's Clubs, Public Health Authorities, Physicians, Osteopaths, Directors of Physical Education, Editors, Stage Celebrities and prominent women everywhere.
